

THE APOSTROPHE

The apostrophe is used for two distinct purposes: to indicate a word is a contraction and to indicate possession.

Contraction

A contraction is the shortened form of two words. Using contractions can add an informal tone to your writing. Apostrophes are used in contractions to indicate the omission of letters.

When two words are shortened into one word and one or more letter(s) is/are left out, the apostrophe goes in the place of the missing letter(s).

Examples:

they are = they're did not = didn't will not = won't who is, who has = who's is not = isn't

let us = lets it is = it's you would = you'd there is = there's we are = we're

we will = we'll

she is, she has = she's

The apostrophe is also used to show the omission of numbers.

Example: The class of 2022 = the class of '22

Exercise 1:

Write the following set of words in their contracted form.

he will _____

you have _____

I am _____

do not _____ would not _____ where is _____ you will _____

it is _____

Kim is _____ they have _____ you are _____

has not _____ can not _____ have not _____ we are _____ should not _____ will not _____ could have _____

Exercise 2:

Place an apostrophe where necessary in these sentences.

1. Im sorry, but we wont be able to attend the party on Friday.
2. Whats wrong with Raj? He hasnt come to class in two weeks.
3. The exam didnt have any questions on it that I couldnt answer.
4. Jonathan graduated Humber Colleges class of 15.

Possession

The apostrophe also shows ownership, or possession. The owner is the first noun, and the apostrophe is given to the owner. It possesses the noun or nouns that come right after it.

Examples:

-the student's homework
-the opera singer's voice
-a driver's license
-worker's compensation
-a day's work
-your money's worth

Add an apostrophe and an s to singular and plural nouns that don't end in s:

Examples:

person + 's = the person's opinion
professor + 's = the professor's lecture father-in-law + 's = my father-in-law's house Jasmine + 's = Jasmin's hat people + 's = people's rights women + 's = women's rights children + 's = children's toys anyone + 's = anyone's responsibility

Add an apostrophe and an s to singular nouns that end in s:

Examples:

James + 's = James's
Paris + 's = Paris's
My boss + 's = My boss's
The business + 's = The business's

Add only an apostrophe to plural nouns that end in s:

Content in this document was created by Math & Writing Centre tutors with the support of Student Learning Services and the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Sciences at Humber College.

<https://humber.ca/learningresources/>

Examples:

the Smith + 's = the Smiths' boat

boys + 's = boys' washroom musician + 's = musicians' instruments

two girl + 's = two girls' dolls

doctor + 's = doctors' office worker + 's = workers' break

Exercise 3:

Make the following words possessive.

1. students
2. businesswomen
3. boys
4. girl
5. no one
6. Humber college
7. summer
8. Canada
9. yesterday
10. prime minister

Warning!

Don't assume that if a word ends in an s, it is possessive. Make sure that the word possesses something before you put in an apostrophe.

Examples:

The workers were angry.

We invited the Chungs over for dinner.

Notice that there are no apostrophes after the workers and Chungs because these words do not possess the following words.

Special Considerations:

Joint Possession

If more than one noun has ownership of the same thing, only the last noun should be possessive, as in the following:

Example:

Jillian and Jordan's new car is red.

To show individual possession of something, make each noun possessive.

Example:

Jillian's and Jordan's expectations were different.

Exercise 4

Add an apostrophe where necessary to show either joint or individual possession.

1. This is Chris and Pams new house.
2. Mohammed, Nathan, and Adams team won the competition.
3. Marcus and Darius dads work together.
4. Samantha and Suzannes trophies are in the display cabinet.

Plurals of Numbers, Letters, and Abbreviations

An apostrophe and an s can be used to pluralize single letters that appear in lowercase. This rule is meant to assist the reader's understanding and maintain clarity.

Examples:

Wrong: Make sure to cross all your ts and dot your is.

Correct: Make sure to cross all your t's and dot your i's.

The second sentence is much easier to read because the apostrophe clarifies the lowercase. It is not necessary to use apostrophes when indicating plurals on capital letters, numbers or abbreviations. (Keep in mind that some professors and instructors prefer apostrophes to be used.)

Examples:

There have been many UFOs sighted in New Mexico.

My grandfather was born in the 1950s.

Possessive Pronouns

Note that the following words, which are called possessive pronouns, are already possessive in form and do not take an apostrophe or an s.

my/mine your/your her/hers his its our/ours their/theirs whose

HUMBER

Content in this document was created by Math & Writing Centre tutors with the support of Student Learning Services and the Faculty of Liberal Arts & Sciences at Humber College.

<https://humber.ca/learningresources/>