

Sustainability,
Equity, Courage,
Health &
Well-being

National Day of Remembrance and
Action on Violence Against Women:

Examining Gender
Based Violence
Through the Lens of Indigenous
Knowledges Using
Story as a Method

Tuesday,
Dec 6th, 2022
11:00 am to 12:00 pm

Register - <https://bit.ly/3NagsJL>

This session will be hosted virtually

Tasha Beeds

BA, MA

Tasha Beeds is an Indigenous scholar of nêhiyaw, Scottish-Metis, and Caribbean ancestry from the Treaty 6 territories of Saskatchewan. Tasha activates from connected roles: as a mother, a kôhkom, a creative artist, poet, Water Walker, and a Midewiwin iskwêw from Minweyweywigaaan Lodge out of Roseau River First Nations and Wiikwemkoong Unceded Reserve in Ontario.

Her creative, academic, and grassroots work highlights and celebrates Indigeneity while promoting Indigenous nationhood and sovereignty, as well as care and protection of the land and waters based on carrying Indigenous Ancestral legacies forward for the generations to come. She asserts Indigenous intellectual bundles, legal orders, cultural legacies, and spiritual traditions have survived and will continue to flourish.