

WE ARE
SUSTAINABILITY

DAVID SUZUKI BLUE DOT TOUR

ARE CURRENT FOOD SYSTEMS FAILING US - ARE YOU HUNGRY FOR CHANGE?

On Monday October 6, the David Suzuki Foundation, the National Film Board of Canada and Humber College invite Canadian students to talk about the intersection of food equity and environmental justice. A panel discussion, led by Dr. David Suzuki, and streaming live from Humber to classrooms across the country, will examine the impact of modern farming practices on our health, land and food security.

Suzuki will be joined by panelists J.B. MacKinnon co-author of Canadian bestseller The 100-Mile Diet and Utcha Sawyers from Food Share Toronto to discuss what we can do as individuals and as a nation to ensure that every person has the basic ingredients for a life of health and dignity. The event also features poet Tanya Davis, whose compelling poem is the backdrop for the NFB film Island Green, a look at conventional and organic farming on Prince Edward Island. The film is the catalyst for the panel discussion.

If you are planning to bring your class to the event, please REGISTER at <http://bit.ly/humber-blue-dot> and include the number of students attending. You can also register as an individual. There is no charge to attend the event in person. All students, staff and faculty are welcome.

Monday, October 6, 2014

Location: Lakeshore Campus Auditorium A128

11 am: Arrive, initial welcome

11:15 am: Screening of the film 'Island Green' (approximately 25 mins)

11:45 am: Official welcome and introductions

12 pm - 1:30 pm: Panel discussion with guests, including pre-screened questions from students across Canada and Humber.

Humber.ca/sustainability

SUSTAINABILITY

