

Thursday, May 23
10–11:30 a.m. EST
Hybrid Event*

Keynote by Bradley Schurman

DESIGNING FOR DEMOCRATIC RESILIENCE:

Inclusive Strategies to Make the Workplace Work for All.

Embracing inclusive design is no longer optional—it's imperative in these times of disruptive demographic change. This engaging keynote will unveil the business case for inclusive design in the workplace, emphasizing the integration of diverse age groups and abilities in three pivotal segments: Strategy, Benefits, and Physical Design.

Join us to gain invaluable insights into creating a workplace that truly welcomes and supports everyone, bridging gaps, and building stronger, more cohesive teams.

This session is a must-attend for leaders, HR professionals, and anyone committed to fostering inclusivity and diversity within their organization.

*Light refreshments provided.

Humber College, 205 Humber College Blvd.
Barrett Centre for Technology Innovation, 5th Floor

For further questions, contact: agingincommunity@humber.ca

CLICK HERE TO REGISTER TODAY!

Bradley Schurman is an expert on demographic change and how it disrupts social, cultural, political, and economic norms across the United States and worldwide. He's the author of The Super Age: Decoding Our Demographic Destiny and the founder and CEO of the strategic foresight and inclusive design firm, Human Change (formerly The Super Age).

Bradley has spoken at OECD and the World Economic Forum and led thought leadership in Asia and Europe.

He's appeared on NBC's TODAY Show, CBS News Primetime with John Dickerson, and regularly appears as a guest on podcasts, radio, and television shows worldwide.

AGING IN COMMUNITY
EDUCATION & RESEARCH

agingincommunity.ca

HUMBER
Research & Innovation