HUMBER

the Staff Lounge

New Episode Launches Today!

Innovative Learning

LMS: Humanizing the Online Learning Experience

The LMS is now an indispensable tool in higher education. But how do we maintain a human centred approach to pedagogy?

In this second episode of our two-part series on LMS in Higher Learning, we are joined by Humber FMCA Faculty members, Cynthia Young and Mark-Anthony Karam, who explore strategies to ensure that your LMS design reflects your teaching philosophy and process.

"Pace and flow become important, and this concept of 'breathe at the beginning of the week and reflect at the end of the week' is a really great way."
— Cynthia Young, PC and Faculty, Content Strategy Certificate and User Experience (UX) Design Graduate Certificate, FMCA

"Just like you want your students to be authentic with their projects, you be authentic with your teaching style. Don't be afraid to put a piece of you in your teaching; those are the things your students respect."
— Mark-Anthony Karam, Faculty, FMCA

Further Resources

How'd we get here?
Mark-Anthony's podcast series "on education + design with wellness in mind."

Humber FMCA UX Design Program
Program Overview

SUBSCRIBE to the Staff Lounge podcast TODAY at Innovative Learning!

Listen to Humanizing the Online Learning Experience now at The Staff Lounge or wherever you get your podcasts.